OFFICIAL TRANSACTIONS AT THE WHY JUDGE MASH SHOELD HE NOM FR GOVERNOR.

> Franklin's Ank Ohio No Public Car Been Faithful and Upright.

Columbus, O., April 11, 1512.

To the Republicans of Ohio: At a meeting of the delegates and their alternates, from Franklia sounty to the Republican state convention, it was unanimously resolved to issue an address to the Republicans of Ohio, The object of this address in to set forth why we, who are the friends and neighbors of Judge George E. Rush, are earnestly and unitedly in favor of his nomination for governor, and to ask the Republicans of the wists to unite with us in bringing about that very desirable result.

While Judge Nash, by reason of his active work for the party, on the stump and in the committee room more than 25 years, is well and favorably known perconally, or by retion, to all the Republicans of It is fitting that we, who have h It is fitting that we, who have blown him intimately during these rears, should call attention at this time not only to these services, but also to his qualifications for the office, of which, by reason of our acquaintance him, we may have fuller know than others who have not been so orably situated.

George K. Nash has been a re of Columbus since 1865, and has always since that time been a pros leader in the Republican part office of prosecuting attorney of Frank-lin county in 1870, and his re-election in 1872, both due to his ability and popularity, were the beginning of downfall of the Democratic par

From January, 1880, to April, 1885, he filled with signal ability the office of attorney general, and resigned that office upon being appointed by Governor Foster a member of the supreme court commission. This office he filled with great credit to himself and the state, until the expiration of the commission, in 1885. He has always been active in political work in municipal, county, state and national affairs. Me was chairman of the state executive committee in the presidential campaign of 1886, and again in 1881, 1882 and 1897. When not acting as chair-man, he has always been in close touch with the committees, his experience and ability rendering his services invaluable. Such have been his political services; always ready, always able to serve the Republican party; prepared to conduct a campaign or to assist in its presecution, with ability to command, and loyalty to serve, In all these campaigns he has ever shown himself a vigorous antagenist and a brilliant fighter. The blows he gave were given fairly, squarely and with great effect, and his opponents have ever found it impossible to werve him from what he believed to

He has been honest, faithful and upright in all his dealings, commanding and receiving the affection of his friends and the respect of his enemies. His executive ability has been tested and proved.

His experience as the law officer of the state has made him familiar, not only with all its various departments, but with their needs and methods, and peculiarly fits him to administer them so that their purposes shall be faithfully carried out.

His acquaintance with public men in Ohio and elsewhere is very large, and his association with them has so familiarized him with public affairs as eminently to qualify him for the office of governor. We know he will fill the office with honor and dignity, with credit to himself and to the state, and we present him to the Republican voters of Ohio, for their deliberate judgment and favorable consideration. Respectfully submitted,

WELLINGTON STREETS.

PERMANENT IMPROVEMENTS SUGGESTED THEREIN.

Gravel, Brick or Asphalt?--Which do we Want?--How can Either be paid for?--Pertinent Suggestions.

In our last week's issue we promised another installment under this head. We now undertake to redeem that promise. In doing this we do not pretend to be a fountain of knowledge or wisdom. We seek simply to give visible expression to the pent up groanings of the heart for lo, these many years. Not only so, but some of our good people have expressed themselves along the lines of thought which follow. Since our other article was written and published, we feel that we are in good company and have the sympathy and co-operation of many good citizens in the thoughts below.

About ten years ago, the town paid out $10,000 to improve the streets with Clarksfield stone. This stone was laid eight feet wide and from six to ten inches thick on the two main streets to the corporation limits and to Wheeling Avenue on Prospect street. This was laid in the center of the street. For one short distance on West Main Street a double track was laid. In a few places a third track has been added next to the side walk, but this was largely by private enterprise. Now we would like to see the man today not financially interested in stone quarries, who would not like to see all that stone displaced by something better.

Now what is better? We answer, either of three things: gravel, brick or asphalt. We know some cities of twelve thousand inhabitants, whose streets are made of gravel, and it serves a good purpose, except in the late fall and early spring rains. It then becomes, when mixed with the mud brought in from the country on the wagon wheels, a thin, mortary substance which renders the streets and crossings very nasty and disagreeable. This kind of street would be the cheapest, from a money standpoint, but when you can have something far better, why not have it? Wellington people are entitled to the best there is to be offered. The money spent on old dilapidated streets to keep them in repair is worse than wasted.

What is wanted? 1st. Good crossings kept clean.

2nd. Good ditches and gutters kept clean.

3rd. Sufficient scraping in the spring to level the

4th. The balance of the street fund to be expended in permanent improvement of the streets.

For these four items we do not claim originality. They may be found substantially in Judge Munson's discussion of the streets of Medina. We are glad to make this acknowledgement, and to take advantage of his able and well considered views upon a subject so vital to the convenience and happiness of every community of people.

It seems to be necessary to reject the thought of a gravel turnpike, however superior that might be to the stone road. We are then reduced to either brick or asphalt pavement. The asphalt is better, smother, nicer in every way, but more expensive to build and keep in repair. The brick is good and easily laid and kept in repair and 50c values in fine papers, 20, 25 and 30c possibly for our purposes, all things considered, the one

Now about the ways and means to pay for it. Last The Wellington Saw Mill Company year ending March 20, the clerk's exhibit shows $2390.44 expended from the street fund, practically $2400. This property subject to sale, and last week has been about the average for years. With the necessary work to keep the crossings and ditches clean in wet Wayne, Ind., with large capital, have weather, there might easily be left, annually, $2000 to expurchased the mill of Mr. S. S. War- pend on permanent improvements. Let this amount be least two years, and will run the mill used first on the public square and the park. Improve and beautify these two places. Then should there be a surplus, it can be expended to advantage in the direction have to bid good-bye to Messrs. Hall of the railroad on North Main and West Main streets. Gradually extend the work from year to year in every direction, slowly if need be, but in thorough workmanlike manner. Extend the sewerage system as the paving is extended.

Provide for the future. Build for all time, and in a few years the streets of our village will be in prime condition and at no greater expense than we pay for shoveling mud. Think what might have been, had the $10,000 originally expended ten years ago been used for a starter in this direction and the $24,000 paid out since that time, used in extending and perfecting those inprovements. We are asked: "What shall be done with the stone already laid?" We answer, take it up as fast as you come to it in paving, but no faster, either pound it to pieces for a substratum for the brick paving or utilize the best of it for crossings and walks farther out, or for curbing along the streets. In this manner it can be disposed of and gradually give place to better, more convenient, prettier pavement, and one that will be enjoyed by every person who walks or rides upon it. In connection with this we have ideas about beautifying the square and the park, but we reserve this expression for on-
